Preparing For The Season: Living Life

Continues through Resurrection Sunday on April 12th.

Wait A Minute!

The coronavirus: Some thoughts. First, I see both over reaction which could lead to panic; but I also see under reaction which could lead to a lack of preparedness. The media has hyped and broadcasted and supersized the issue to such a degree with their constant 24 hour coverage that I no longer watch the news.

Second, we need a call for common sense, which, in my humble opinion, most politicians lack. If you are running a fever and have flu like or even severe cold like symptoms, stay at home. Other than going to and from the doctor if those symptoms exist, you do not need to be around people. These symptoms may or may not be the coronavirus, but if you have a fever you could be contagious. So use some common sense and exercise some common courtesy. I’ve always said concerning church attendance that sickness and illness is the best excuse for missing church.

Also, under the heading of common sense, wash your hands all the time. If you’ve been around people and shaken their hands, then “wash the fellowship off your hands” as soon as you can. You do not have to be germ-a-phobic but washing your hands always helps.

And then third, don’t point fingers of blame. This is a virus that has been around and is now effecting people. It’s not the President’s fault; Congress’ fault; the Chinese fault; or anyone else’s fault. Don’t join the bias pundits on either side of the political aisle and claim that the other side is not doing their job. How irresponsible!

Glad to get that off my chest. I am enjoying a week in Houston and in Georgetown. We will be back to worship with you this Sunday and I look forward to seeing you then.
